want to throw in the towel and scream at the top of my lungs "I SURREN-DER"!!! Those days seem to start out bad and just stay on course for the entire day. Do you know why they stay on course for the rest of the day? It's because my attitude is what determines the course that my day will take, that's precisely why. When catastrophe strikes first thing in the morning ... whether in the form of a pen that bursts and leaves a lake of ink in my lap or the printer decides it doesn't want to perform in the manner in which it was instructed to or even if someone close to me seems determined to infect me with their negativity ... I still have the ability within myself to NOT REACT ... to immediately go to the "switch box" in my head and change course. Often times though, I stay on course and the day just grinds to an achingly slow pace and with each step I take I find myself heading deeper and deeper into a certain measure of despair.

Now, as old as I am, you would think that I would have learned by now to not be SO REACTIVE. should instead remain calm and serene and go to that little peaceful place in my head when things happen that I could really do without and yet have little or no control of. Perhaps a tiny dose of humor would help as well. What if, when the broken ink pen decides to leave its murky imprint permanently on my new jeans

(not to mention on my legs themselves) I just laughed at the shape it left behind ... oh look ... it looks like a poodle (instead of a puddle) ... (rofl: rolling on floor laughing). So what if the printer decides it has a mind of its own (as can ONLY happen in "techie world") ... (sarcasm alert) ... what if instead of fuming about it and getting grumpy about it, I instead say (aloud - it seems to be more effective) "look here printer ... this is not a good day for you to misbehave – I am going to have to turn you off now and make you stay in this corner until you decide to correct your current stance". Okay, in reality I can't even

-By Brenda Dwyer

alone actually thought it because I would certainly never talk out loud to a piece of machinery (except my car) ... but "any who" ... my point is this ... why get so wound up in the moment? Why don't I just instead go on my way and address it later? If the problem hasn't remedied itself by the time "later" arrives then I will address it in a way that can only be appreciated by like-minded people ... I will shoot it (with a water gun). NOTE TO (your) SELF: I did mention a (tiny dose of) humor helps. Then last, but certainly not the least of my musing, what would happen (given I was changing course in my mind) if someone did bring their negativbelieve I just wrote that let ity with them first thing in the morning? What then? Well, I could simply ask them to "check it" (to kind of break the ice) and should they ask "check what?" I would simply respond ... check the personal baggage at the door please then come on in. I am sure they would get the message and then I wouldn't have to worry about trying to hustle and get a "negativity quarantine" put into place.

To persevere is, I think, key. To be purposeful in starting each day with a positive outlook is something to continuously strive for. I know I'm not the only one with this particular struggle. I hear others comment often about individuals who seem to be happy all of the time and how wonderful their life must be. Really, you think so? I don't ... I don't think their lives are any more fascinating or wonderful than my own ... I just think they know all too well the secret to being happy all of the time, it's called ...

My article is always the last thing to go in the pa-Everybody runs around on the final day, proofing and making sure all of the ads/articles are in place. Today is no different. The corner office, once again, is the last thing to go into the paper. Now I have to try to decide what to write about. How about Radon? Did you know that radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer and that many homes and businesses have elevated levels? What's worse is that it is totally preventable. There is a very easy fix. No occupied space ever has to have elevated levels of radon but people just won't pay attention to radon. Why do you think it takes a doctor telling you or your loved ones that you have lung cancer before something is done? I am intentionally meaning to be harsh and direct here because I want you to do something. I want you to have your home checked for radon. I suggest an EPA approved digital monitor be your first plan of action and I would love to better explain why so please, pick up the phone now and dial (574) 825-1677 and ask for Bob. Let me say this again ... I really want you to make that call. This is too important to

If you're in denial about the importance of radon testing, perhaps you would like me to devote this space instead to the topic of air duct cleaning. How about air duct cleaning is it worth it? You need to know the questions to ask before you hire someone to clean your air ducts. Air duct cleaning can be greatly beneficial if it's done properly. Want to know something scary? Many companies that advertise duct cleaning are doing it wrong; call me and I will explain. When I'm telling you to call me, I want you to just pretend I'm your brother or best friend, there is no pressure I am just someone you can get straight honest answers from ... remember you have a neighbor in the business.

Let me wind down here by offering you more free advice; STOP buying those expensive 1" filters. You know the ones ... the ones that say allergen or dust control ... STOP wasting your money!!! Buy the cheap filters that usually cost between $1.00 to $5.00 (no more) and if you want to know why; call me.

Oh ... the Neighbor club; get with it! Do you want to save money at merchants all over town and get great benefits? Don't be left out! This is a great program that supports our community and saves you money; a true win-win deal! Become a preferred customer of A Good Neighbor and I will pay for your card. Last thing ... watch for our new location at 509 S Main Street in Middlebury. Now thank you for reading my entire article and go have a great day and while you're at it; smile do something nice for someone.

(Sorry) just one last thing to my wife Brenda; I could never do all this without you. Thank you for your support, I love you.

Spring has sprung and my old eves still wonder at the subtlety of it all. One day the ground feels frozen under my paws and the next brings forth little points of bulbs peeking through its hard, yet obviously giving, substance. I wonder what the warm weather will bring this year. I am the last of my family here and I find that I frequently entertain myself with my memories. I hope all of my babies fared well in life. So many others will wander through as they do every year and I will meet and greet them all. Some will stay a night or two and then move on ... others will come here just to visit for a few hours. The neighbors will have their share of visitors as well, just as is always the case. Living on a county road makes us an easy target for little strays that are dropped off out here. As time goes by I am keeping company with more chickens and less of my own species. That's okay ... Henny Penny and I have always gotten along like sisters. Well, it's time for me to go ... my naps are becoming more frequent and I find I can't just go on and on like I used to. Treasure your family and make good memories; they will serve you well later on in life

She thought if she tippytoed up behind Mr. Frog he wouldn't hear her nor would he see her. Across the sodden grass crept ... putting her feet one in front of the other. Just as she was about to whisper his name he let out a deep, resounding croak. It startled her so that she fell, off-balance, to There he her knees. stayed. gerly reached her chubby little fingers out to touch him and as if he knew ... he turned on his two tiny front legs as if to greet her. It was a magical moment, for sure. "Why hello there Mr. Frog" she whispered. "I'm so sorry if I gave you a start!" she went on. "When I saw you here I thought it would be wonderful to get to know you." And so it went ... she chatted and he just sat there soaking up her attention. They met this way off and on for the next two years until one day Mr. Frog was no longer there. It broke her heart after she realized that her friend was not coming back. She was, however, two years older now and was able to think back on all of the fun times, all of the times she had confided in her friend and ... she was thankful. Sometimes the memories of a thing are so very precious (for they last a lifetime) and no matter where life takes us ... we can carry them along.

A Friend is ...

"What kind of friend are you?"

What do you mean?

"I mean, would you consider yourself to be considerate, loyal, available and steadfast?"

Well, quite honestly, I don't know where to start. "It's not that difficult."

Your question is multilayered, the way I see it. "It's a simple question."

Perhaps, but you're not asking it of a simple person. "Come again?!"

First of all I would need you to define what you mean by a friend and then I would have to tell you a story. You see, I have never attracted friends, per se. I have been a friend at times when someone needed me but I have never had the time nor the inclination to be a friend to any one person for any great length of time. "Wow."

Most people have at least one really good friend that they can depend on for most anything. Some people have friends that they have had since childhood. Quite a few people seem to collect friends and have several. I don't fall within either one of those classifications. I am more of a loner and yet I am available for any one person who may need a friend at any given time.

"I've kind of noticed that about you." "You seem to really be in the moment with people when they are talking to you ... it's like they are the only person in the world that exists when they are in front of you ... but then you are off to something else as soon as they're gone."

Yea, I guess that is how it would seem. Doesn't seem so bad to me though ... what is to be gained by having someone else to be responsible for all of the time? It takes so much energy to nurture friendships and I would rather expend that energy on my husband and my family. I love having people in my life that I can exchange ideas, experiences and love with and my life is so very full that the only way I can ever imagine having the type of friend you are probably thinking of would be if God put someone in my life with that intent. In the meantime ... I will keep on being the only kind of friend I know how to be ... someone who gives you 100% in the moment ... and just hope it is

I always tell people that I meet that seem to want more of me that I know at some point in our journey I will fail them ... God will never fail them ... but I will. I know it. I simply never seem to find enough time to satisfy a long term friend-ship

So, in answer to your question "what kind of friend are you" ... I would have to say I am honest, dependable, considerate and available ... in the moment. That's the only kind of friend I know how to be.

What kind of friend are YOU?

From our Kitchen

Easy Granola

4 cups old-fashioned rolled oats (not quick cooking) 1 cup sliced almonds

1/2 cup shredded coconut (preferably unsweetened)
1/4 cup unsalted hulled pumpkin seeds or shelled sunflower seeds

1/2 cup pure maple syrup 2 tablespoons canola oil 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt 1 cup dried fruit (your pick)

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. On a rimmed baking sheet, toss the oats, almonds, coconut and pumpkin seeds with the maple syrup, oil and salt.

Bake, tossing once, until golden and crisp, 25 to 30 minutes.

Add the dried fruit and toss to combine. Let cool.

Tip: The granola will keep in an airtight container in a cool, dry place for up to 3 weeks.
